Inspired by Wim Wenders' 1987 film, Wings of Desire, ALAS revolves around the plight of Daniel, the angel who longs to join the world of the living, where mortals breathe, feel and touch. Nacho Duato, artistic director of Spain's Compania Nacional de Danza, plays the anguished Daniel and also choreographs this emotionally-charged work. ALAS is also the first collaboration between Duato and the Slovene theatre director Tomaz Pandur.

Featuring direct excerpts from Wenders' film, predominantly spoken live by Duato in Spanish as he writhes and contorts, this is a very dramatic piece of work. Duato becomes an actor as much as a dancer with his eloquent reciting revealing as much of his character's loneliness and pain, as his tormented presence on stage.
